Ready-to-cook meals for the malnourished:

Team effort at teen center

The Collings West Sacramento Teen Center on Saturday turned into a bustling food-prepn center for several hours, as a coalition of groups and volunteers donned hair nets to assemble food packets for the hungry.

The Centennial Rotary Club spearheaded the event, working with the "Kids Against Hunger" organization that feeds families worldwide.

The event marked Rotary's annual international work day.

"The 28th of April was the workday throughout the world," said local club president Walt James. "All clubs try to participate in some kind of project that day."

Why the "Kids Against Hunger" program?

"I bumped into it when I was at the convention in New Orleans last year. They had all kinds of booths on projects going on over the world, and this one caught my interest," said James.

Sherri Leal is a "satellite program director" for Kids Against Hunger, and she coordinated with Rotary for the event. Saturday's crowd of volunteers displayed a remarkable work ethic as they measured and packaged the easy-to-digest dry rice combos.

"We had about 110 volunteers," said James. "We had people from all over the community, including the CERTs (the fire department's Community Emergency Response Team) and members of the (other local) Rotary Club. We had people from Our Lady of Grace School, people from Christian Brothers High School, and we had the Pocket Greenhaven Rotary Club. We had one girl come from Mira Loma High School. We had the downtown Westminster Presbyterian Church – they brought about 30 kids. From the Southport part of West Sacramento was the Lighthouse Covenant Church. Plus some teens that frequent the teen center."

What goes into the meals?

"What you have is rice, dehydrated vegetables, soy protein and minerals," said James. "It's a meal that's balanced out for a malnourished kid, but anybody can eat it. There's no meat, pork or fish – it's all vegan."

Rice is donated or bought by local contributors, and Kids Against Hunger brings the other ingredients.

When the recipient adds water and cooks the mix, the result tastes something like Rice-A-Roni – as many of those who tried the samples offered at the front of the teen center found out.

Six servings go into every bag – and the work party in West Sacramento assembled about 5,000 bags, or 30,000 meals.

Those bags will join other bags filled by other volunteer groups, filling up a 20-foot shipping container for eventual transport by the U.S. Navy to a destination in need.

"Sheri has been shipping a lot to Haiti," said James. "She has shipped to Somalia and the Philippines. She does not ship until they fill a container. You have to get the free shipping to make this work. The Navy is instrumental in putting these cargo containers (which hold about 585,000 meals) onto their ships and getting them where they go."

"This is something anybody can do," add James.

Soldier from West Sac dies in Afghanistan

A 22-year old who grew up in West Sacramento and enlisted in the Army died on April 24 while serving in Afghanistan.

Specialist Manuel J. Vasquez was on his first deployment to the region, serving with C Company, 2nd Battalion, 28th Infantry Regiment, Task Force Blackhawk in Paktika Province.

The Defense Department declined to provide details of Vasquez's death, which is still under investigation.

Vasquez was raised in West Sacramento before attending Mira Loma High School. He joined the Army in 2010. He is survived by his parents, Violet Castro of West Sacramento and Raymond J. Vasquez, of Citrus Heights, and by siblings and other relatives.

'Operation Red Sash' targeted gangs & drugs

The office of Attorney General Kamala D. Harris announced last week the conclusion of an operation combating gangs and narcotics trafficking in the West Sacramento, Sacramento and Roseville areas.

Over 100 law enforcement officers participated through the Yolo County Narcotics Enforcement Team (YONET) — a coalition led by the state department of justice and which includes the West Sacramento Police Department and other Yolo-area agencies.

"The investigation resulted in 18 arrests, four guns, body armor, a stun gun, and drugs," said a press release from Harris's office. "Everyone arrested will be booked into Yolo County Jail."

In West Sacramento, the operation was called "Operation Red Sash," "because of the Northern Riders and Broderick Boys criminal street gang affiliation with the color red and Nortenos street gang," the news release added. The operation "targeted mid-level to high-level members who were distributors of illegal narcotics."

Arrests were made for felony charges related to narcotics trafficking, conspiracy to traffic, and participation in a street gang.

"Today's operation will cripple these street gangs and their criminal enterprise network," said Harris's office.

No details were provided on the identification of those arrested.

The operation began in November, said the A.G.'s office.

Phony text messages

The office of Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig says it has received complaints about some text message scams making the rounds.

One in particular starts with "Dear Walmart Shopper," and promises a $1,000 gift card. Another says "Apple is looking for people to Test & Keep the New iPad 3!" Both ask you to click on a link or go to a website.

They amount to a trick trying to get personal information from victims.

"We strongly encourage you to delete the text message," said a D.A.'s office representative.

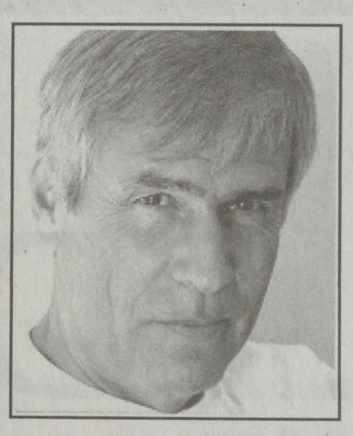
Do your children have the 'slob' gene?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Note: A very nice mother of three was telling me the other day that she is at the end of her rope when it comes to getting her teenage children to keep their rooms clean, and I was reminded of the following column, written back when a couple of my kids were the biggest slobs in town.

I recently came across a Scripps Howard News Service story entitled, "It's a jungle in there – the trials of parenting a teenager."

On closer examination, I realized the article was about Kate Kelly's new book, The Complete Idiot's Guide to Parenting a Teenager. Since a friend of mine had recommended Ms. Kelly's book to me a few months earlier, I decided to read on.

According to Kelly, if you really want to feel like a fool, all you have to do is try raising a teenager. "Teens are absolutely sure they know everything and that their parents know nothing," explains Kelly. "My book isn't all psychological, though. It's to help parents regain control of the telephone, set up a system that will help teach a teen how to handle money, and establish guidelines for neat and clean rooms."

I started to laugh and my wife, who was seated next to me, asked why.

"Oh," I said, "it's just that some poor misguided soul has written a book which claims to be able to help parents get their kids to clean up their rooms."

"Really?" asked my wife with interest.

"Yeah, there's a whole list of things we're supposed to be doing."

"Really? Like what?"

"Well, to begin with, parents apparently need to set a `neatness standard'. It says here that kids should be required to do the following things at least once a week: change the sheets on the bed; put their laundry in the hamper; put their clean clothes away; empty the wastebasket; and clean and vacuum the floor. We're also not supposed to be letting them eat in their rooms or get away with not making their beds."

Now it was my wife who was laughing. "Well, good luck with all that," she said as she got up from her seat and wandered off in search of more realistic conversation.

Anyway, as someone who has helped raise four children (most of whom are thankfully almost done with their teenage years), I'm more or less convinced that all kids everywhere are born with, or without, a slob gene. I'm also pretty sure it's one of those shared genes, unlike male-pattern baldness for instance, which is supposedly passed along just by women.

Thankfully, in my particular case, only 50% of my four children have inherited the dreaded slob gene. At first, I was hopeful that both of them might out-grow it, but as the years have passed, I have come to accept the fact that they truly enjoy being slobs, and that I might do irreparable damage to their personalities if I try to change them.

Now, for those of you who might be wondering if your child has inherited the slob gene, it's really quite easy to recognize. Signs appear very early, usually with a complete indifference to potty-training and the shoving of baby food into every nook and cranny of their young body. Then you'll notice that you're always tripping over their toys, especially the ones which are made out of metal-like materials capable of instantaneously shooting excruciating pain from your big toe to your brain. That will be followed by their clothes becoming soiled five minutes after they put them on and the remarkable ability to somehow make themselves smell just like a dead fish.

Finally, as the years go on, you'll start having conversations with them which go a little like this:

"Go clean up your room!"

"I'll do it later."

"You'll do it now!"

"But why can't I do it later?"

"Because your room is filthy now."

"I tell you what, I'll do it tonight, after I finish my homework, okay?"

"No, you'll do it now, before the catsup dries on the bedspread. And by the way, pillowcases are not napkins."

"But I'll do a much better job if I do it tonight."

"Why?"

"Because I clean better at night. There aren't so many distractions."

"That's a new one."

"Plus my room's not really all that dirty now. It's just kind of cluttered."

"Cluttered? I happen to know for a fact that every single article of clothing you own is presently on your bedroom floor. Now what can be so hard about putting clothes on a hanger? And by the way, your closet is for hanging things up, not for stashing 5,000 video games and music CD's."

"But I never have time to hang up my clothes. I'm too busy."

"It takes what, one minute?"

"Look, I'll clean my whole room tonight, I promise. I'll even vacuum and take all the dirty dishes and used glasses into the kitchen."

"The mice will be sad to hear that."

"There are no mice in my room."

Signs appear very early, usually starting with a complete indifference to potty-training and the shoving of baby food into every nook and cranny of their young body.

"Your mother thinks she also saw a snake slithering around in there the other day."

"Well, then that should keep the mice under control!"

"Very funny. Now go clean your room! But first tell me, how can you live in such filth? A person needs to get shots before going into your room."

"What are you talking about? My room is not filthy. It's not even really dirty. It's just a little bit messy, that's all. You don't want me to grow up to be a clean freak, do you?"

"Yes!"

"You know, Dad, you really need to chill out and be more like Mom. She never hassles me about cleaning up my room."

"That's because her room looked the same as yours when we first met!"

River City tennis squad takes home another conference title

From River City High School

A doubleheader sweep of visiting El Dorado and a win at Union Mine wrapped up the Sierra Valley Conference (SVC) championship for the River City tennis team last week. It's the team's 16th league title in the past 17 years and the 18th overall in Raider tennis history.

River City blanked El Dorado 9-0 in the first match of the doubleheader and then polished off the Cougars with an 8-1 win. Jai London won both of her #1 girls singles matches and Michael Lee earned a pair of victories at #2 boys singles. At the top boys singles position, Terry Vang and Edward Xu each won once, while Cindy Oseguera and Sarah Yang did likewise at #2 girls singles. In boys doubles, Vang teamed with Zoi Saetern for a win at #1, Matthew Tagupa and Amran Khan won the opener at #2, and Muradan Chhay paired with Ben Gerelkhuu to take the #2 nightcap. In the girls doubles matches, Mary Neverov won twice at #1, once with Sarah Yang and once with Lily He, and Avneet Singh and Lina Vang took the first #2 contest while Mariana Contreras and Katie Bowman took the second. Christine Maltez won a pair of mixed doubles matches, one with Phillip Dinh and one with Saetern.

At Union Mine, the Raiders were victorious 7-2, capping off a perfect 12 win, no loss SVC slate, and finishing the regular season 19 and 1 overall. London and Oseguera earned straight-set wins in girls singles, as did Lee at #2 boys. Xu and Saetern (#1 boys), Khan and Tagupa (#2 boys), Neverov and Yang (#1 girls), and Singh and Lina Vang (#2 girls) earned doubles wins for the visitors.

At week's end, the focus shifted to the SVC singles and doubles tournament and there were all-Raider finals in both girls and mixed doubles. Top-seeded Yang and Oseguera defeated the third-seeded Maltez and Neverov in the tourney's championship, 6-4,6-2, while the the sibling duo of Lina and Terry Vang outlasted teammates Singh and Lee to take the mixed crown, 3-6,6-2,6-2. All eight players now advance to the Sac-Joaquin Section Division III tournament later this week at Stockton's Oak Park.

As a team, RC has a first round bye in the Section team playoffs and will play the winner of Denair vs. Marysville in the round of 16. A Raider victory will mean another home contest at 4pm on Monday, May 7th in the quarterfinal round.

Washington Unified School District looks ahead at positive budgeting, solicits parent, community input on school improvement projects

(WEST SACRAMENTO, CA) The Washington Unified School District's positive budget certification by the Yolo County Office of Education is a result of prudent fiscal management coupled with ongoing cost savings programs such as the Solar Array Project at River City High School. These measures help to ensure that K-3 class sizes remain at a 20:1 student to teacher ratio—while many school districts across the region are increasing class sizes, the WUSD has placed a high priority on maintaining ideal class sizes for the District's students.

To ensure continued financial prudency and positive budgeting, the Washington Unified School District is looking ahead at much-needed deferred maintenance and safety improvements at each of the school sites.

Therefore, the District is inviting parents and community members to discuss and prioritize the types of school improvement projects that would continue to ensure that the district is providing the best education in modernized and safe facilities. The District will be holding these community meetings on the following dates:

May 14th – 5:30 p.m. at Southport Elementary School Multipurpose Room (2747 Linden Road, West Sacramento)
May 17th – 5:30 p.m. at Riverbank Elementary School Multipurpose Room (1100 Carrie Street, West Sacramento)

'Guilty' in 2011 killing with pistol

A Yolo County jury convicted 22-year old Charles Cameron Quillin guilty of first degree murder earlier this month, in the killing of Mathew Aleksander Smith in West Sacramento in 2011. The jury also convicted Quillin of discharging a firearm causing death.

According to the office of Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig, the two men were joined by Smith's girlfriend and two other friends in Quillin's trailer for a social gathering on August 27, 2011.

The gathering took place in a trailer on the 600-block of West Capitol Avenue.

After midnight, Quillin wanted one of the women to leave the trailer, and this led to an argument with Smith's girlfriend. Smith intervened.

Smith asked his girlfriend to wait outside.

"As Quillin and Smith were a few feet apart, arguing in the kitchen, Quillin pulled out a revolver from his pants pocket," said a press release from the D.A. "Quillin shot Smith in the head five times before leaving the trailer, placing the revolver in a bush 160 feet from the trailer, and calling his dad."

Quillin surrendered to police.

He will be sentenced by Judge Stephen Mock on May 18. He faces 50 years to life in state prison.

WOODLAND:

Dog sought

The Yolo County Animal Services section of the sheriff's department is looking for help in locating a dog involved in a biting incident in Woodland.

At about 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, April 22, a three-year old was walking with his brother and mother toward their car parked near Slaven Park at Ortiz and Camacho Way, said the department.

A woman jogging with a white and tan, wavy- and medium-length haired "Poodle-type" dog approached, accompanied by another female.

The dog started barking and bit the child. The mother was reportedly unable to get any information from the other two women, except that the dog handler said she worked for a veterinarian.

The dog handler left towards Meikle Avenue and Farmers Central.

She is described as mid-20s, about 5' 3", wearing blue denim shorts and a white tank top, with shoulder-length blonde hair (dark on the bottom half), with bangs on the side. The companion was Caucasian, about 40-50 years old.

Authorities hope to check the dog for rabies, to prevent having to administer post-exposure rabies treatment to the toddler.

Anyone with information is asked to call (530) 668-5287 or email animal.bite@yolocounty.org.

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 573-1965 or visit this Internet Web site www.prioritypostng.com, using the file number assigned to this case 12-46352. GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

The idea of Go Figure is to arrive at the figures given at the bottom and right-hand columns of the diagram by following the arithmetic signs in the order they are given (that is, from left to right and top to bottom). Use only the numbers below the diagram to complete its blank squares and use each of the nine numbers only once.

COUCH THEATER DVD PREVIEWS
BY SAM STRUCKHOFF

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Vow" (PG-13) -- After a car accident takes away his wife's memory of the past five years, Leo (Channing Tatum) is determined to make Paige (Rachel McAdams) fall in love with him again. This is not another adaptation of a Nicholas Sparks novel, but you could have fooled me by the way the posters, previews and plot seem familiar. However, "The Vow" still has something to offer for the lover of sappy romcoms and seeker of movies for date night.

Paige's struggle is mostly about finding a life that makes sense to her -- a lot has changed for her in the five years that she doesn't remember. Leo's struggle is bringing her back to the person it took her years to grow into. Tatum has the charm and the abs to be a romantic-movie star, but he can't quite carry the dramatic weight of the story.

"Underworld: Awakening" (R) -- One can't be certain how many films there are in this particular action-horror series, but this is certainly one of them. Kate Beckinsale takes up her role as Selene, a vampire lady who is frequently called upon to flip around and shoot things. The twist this time is that the human world has caught on to the existence of vampires and werewolves in the present day.

The movie sticks to a few notes. Everything is black with blue lighting. All fights are superhuman gunfights with bits of kung fu. All dialog is horrible and pointless. Sure, these movies are about the skintight black-costumed shootouts, but who says there can't be character development or an interesting plot to go with the full automatics?

"Mother's Day" (R) -- This remake of a bizarre 1980 horror film misses the mark for suspense and winds up with tedium instead. Three violent brothers break out of prison to find that their home has been foreclosed on and sold to a young couple. The fugitives turn a gathering of friends into a hostage situation that escalates when they call in the head honcho: their mom.

Rebecca De Mornay plays the mother with as much straight-laced menace as she can. The film is directed by a fellow who did some of the "Saw" sequels, and the overall tone and torture aspect land in that region.

"Front Line" (NR) -- Set during the last days of combat during the Korean War, this film examines the horrors of war from a slightly different perspective. For a South Korean production, there are quite a few Hollywood tropes, but the film ultimately holds its own by looking at the final, brutal battles for the last hills up for grabs before the ceasefire. A South Korean bullet in one of the commanding officers prompts a murder investigation of a hardened company. The film knows that there is a grim absurdity in a murder investigation on the front lines of war.

"I'll Walk Alone"
By Mary Higgins Clark
(Simon and Schuster, $7.99)
Reviewed by Rose M. Croke

There is good reason why Mary Higgins Clark is called "America's Queen of Suspense." In "I'll Walk Alone," now available in paperback, Higgins Clark delivers yet another suspense-filled whodunit -- her 30th in a long, illustrious career as one of America's most beloved and prolific suspense writers.

The novel's protagonist is Alexandra "Zan" Moreland, a gifted interior designer who is haunted by the kidnapping of her 3-year-old son from Central Park. On what would be Matthew's fifth birthday, photos surface in the media that implicate her in her only son's mysterious disappearance. To add to her misery, a stranger has stolen her identity and is impersonating her. Zan's fledging design business is threatened as her bank accounts are cleaned out and charges to her credit cards mount.

Under surveillance by the media and enduring the relentless scrutiny of the police and her bitter ex-husband, Zan begins to have panic attacks and blackouts that further discredit her sanity. With the help of Alvirah Meehan, an amateur sleuth and one of Higgins Clark's most beloved recurring characters, Zan sets out to clear her name and find the person(s) behind this elaborate scheme. She focuses her blame squarely on Bartley Longe, her one-time mentor and now vindictive business rival.

With her reputation in tatters and overwhelming circumstantial evidence against her, Zan embarks on a mission to prove her innocence and find her son. The story moves along at a fast-clip as Zan pieces together who is trying to destroy her and how it all ties in to the fateful day her son went missing.

As the pieces fall into place, Higgins Clark delivers her trademark fast-paced, race-against-time conclusion that never fails to entertain. A classic page turner, "I'll Walk Alone" is a timely cautionary tale about identity theft expertly woven into a torn-from-the-headlines story about a missing child and a mother's endurance under the glaring hot lamp of suspicion.

The Kitchen Diva BY Angela Shelf Medearis

Berry Good!

Farmers markets and grocery stores are bursting with strawberries. Strawberries are always a nutritious choice and a wonderful treat. The strawberry got its name from the common practice of growing berries under straw to protect them from winter cold and late spring frosts. A member of the rose family, the strawberry sometimes gives off a rose-like aroma. Many speculate about how the luscious fruit was discovered. It is known that the strawberry goes as far back as the Romans and perhaps even the Greeks.

Strawberries are an excellent source of vitamin C, an antioxidant that may reduce the risk of heart disease and some types of cancer. It helps protect the skin from bruising, helps heal cuts and keeps gums healthy. One cup of strawberries provides 3 grams of fiber and only 46 calories. Strawberries also have potassium, which can help maintain a healthy blood pressure.

When picking or buying packages of strawberries, look for ripe, shiny and brilliantly colored berries without any soft or brown patches. Never buy strawberries that are green or hard, or that look dry, dull or wrinkled. When buying berries packed in a basket, check the bottom to see if there is a juice stain. This means that the strawberries at the bottom are crushed.

Always dispose of any berries that have signs of mildew or are rotten, as they'll contaminate the rest. Refrigerating strawberries ruins the flavor, and the strawberry aroma is easily picked up by other foods in the refrigerator. Store the berries in a cool place. Strawberries should be lightly rinsed, not washed before serving, and eaten as soon as possible.

This Strawberry and Spinach Salad with blue cheese crumbles and a balsamic-based dressing is a "berry" good way to serve strawberries.

STRAWBERRY AND SPINACH SALAD

1 pound baby spinach leaves, triple washed
2 cups strawberries, leaves and stems removed and sliced
1/2 small purple onion, sliced thinly
1/2 cup sliced almonds
2 ounces crumbled blue cheese

In a large bowl, mix all ingredients together.

Dressing:
1/2 cup stevia or honey
1/4 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 cup balsamic vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup olive oil

In a saucepan, heat the stevia or honey, Worcestershire sauce, balsamic vinegar, salt, pepper and olive oil over medium heat until the stevia or honey dissolves. Remove mixture from heat. When dressing is cool, toss with the salad mixture until well-combined. Serves 4.
